1. There are no present indications of Soviet or satellite offensive moves.

2. If the Bulgarians resort to mobilization through customary procedures, they will require 12 to 15 days for call ups, equipping of troops and positioning of units.

4. The possibility exists, however, that the Bulgarians may resort to unorthodox procedure by initiating an attack with existing divisions to be followed immediately by open mobilization. This problem is made more acute because such an attack could be launched while the various Bulgarian divisions are presumably on summer maneuvers.

5. The Bulgarians now have mobilization instructions for the immediate drafting of horses and vehicular equipment. They have fairly adequate clothing and supply stores.
